Energy West team takes third in rescue contest

Energy West Mining Silver Team from Huntington, Utah placed third overall in the 2003 National Mine Rescue, First Aid, Rescue and Priority Contest held last week at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center. The Silver Team also placed first overall in the Combination Team Contest and the company's Silver Team No. 2 was second overall in the First Aid Team Contest.

Members from the Energy West Silver Team included Gary Christensen team captain, Tim Curtis, Kelly Duke, Brad Reed and Gordon Lutes. Team alternates were Robert Hill and Brad Timothy. First Aid Team members included Gary Christensen (captain), Ray Guyman and Robert Hill (pastors).

For the second straight year, Casual Energy's Taylor, Fork Mine, from West Folsom, Pa., won the national mine rescue team championship with White County Coal, LLC's Patrick May from Carthage, Ill., finishing second.

U.S. Secretary of Labor Elaine L. Chao, who became the first sitting labor secretary to attend a national mine rescue contest, observed several of the 40 participating teams in action. The annual competition is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA). "I think that mine rescuers represent the best of America," said Assistant Secretary of Labor for Mine Safety and Health David L. Lauriski at the awards banquet. "When these rescue skills are summoned, no matter where that call originates, I know that officers of help will come from all corners of this country, because that's the nature of mine rescuers."

Other first-place winners in the competition, Rank MDTAA, Eastern Associated Coal, Wharton, W.Va., from the Mowee Energy Co., Sidney, Ky., First Aid for Water Rescuers, Rockwood, Ala., Combination Mine Rescue, First Aid Energy West Mining, Huntington, Utah and Peabody Eastern Associated Coal, Fairview, W.Va.

Mine rescue competitions are designed to test the knowledge of miners who might be called upon to respond to a real mine emergency. Teams must solve a hypothetical mine emergency problem, such as a fire, explosion or cave-in, and are judged on accuracy and speed. Rescuers must inspect breathing devices and correct existing defects, while prefilling compressors must examine the mine layout area prior to the working shift.
