

Working Safely

Safety is one part of your workday that you control. You choose whether to work safely... or to take risks and chances.

Doing things right—not because you have to or somebody tells you to, but because you choose to—can be a great source of job satisfaction.

Make a week-long commitment to do every part of every job the safest way you can.

You'll find your work more rewarding simply because you've chosen to do what you know is right... and you're in control of your future.
